IS THIS SECRECY RIGHT?

Dr. PHELPS refuses absolutely to furnish any information to the public about the surgical experiment he is trying at the Charity Hospital of grafting a portion of a dog's leg on to a boy's leg. He says it is none of the public's business.

Is this right? A patient at a city institution is made the subject of a novel surgical experiment, and everything is conducted in the most secretive manner possible. Dr. PHELPS says that he will not let it be known if the boy dies under the ordeal. He thinks it would hurt his reputation.

The public would seem to have some claim to a knowledge of what is done in its art of healing are to be justified by something else than their success. If their at tempt is warranted even ill success should not hurt the physician who takes the unnanal measure.

ANOTHER PLEA.

Mr. Rogen M. SHERMAN has appeared before the Supreme Court in an attempt to snatch his client, the Japanese, SHIBUTA Justeo, from the Sing Sing dynamos. He took the ground that the execution of KEMMLER by electricity had demonstrated that death so procured was "cruel and unusual." and hence unconstitutional.

The Kemmler execution convulsed the press and the community at large with horror. It seems impossible to doubt that it was cruel and the details were revolting. Mr. SERMAN laid stress on the fact that this example had proven the cruelty of the new method, and maintained that this sort of thing would have to be expected and was not a mere accident from mismanagement. Thousands would gladly see the electrical death penalty abolished.

MAKE IT A PRUITPUL TREE.

If a Christmas Tree is properly watered and cared for there is no possibility of a failure in its crop. It will bear an abundance of delightful fruit. It must be watered well with contributions, must drink in the sunshine of warm-hearted forethought, and the soil around it must be loosened by kind feeling for the joys of children. Then its crop of happy hearts is rule. The exception is when it is a Meter sure to be large.

THE EVENING WORLD counts on its numerous patrons as gardeners for the tree an eater for some weeks. which will be given to poor children this Christmas. Send in your contributions early and show a large liberality in this sweet work. You are making happiness for childish bearts by every effort you make for the success of the Tree. Be prompt

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

There are enough Indians to cause trouble if they lose their heads and attack the whites. But the rumors of an Indian uprising and Gen. MILES's apprehensions on this head, with his demand for troops, are regarded with a certain incredulity at the War Department. There are those who say that Gen. MILES is simulating a bad condition of things among the Indians that he may make political capital of his merit in repressing them.

If this be true Gen. MILES is doing a very from $250 to $1,000 each. unpardonable thing. The new religious craze among the Indians and the ghost dance are likely enough to result in some outbreak, but that tendency should neither be encouraged nor misrepresented. In-
